These short descriptions were just when the logging took place, not the progress done on the website. These changes in the logs could've happened through a long period of time but were now being observed.

01/16/2023 - The project has just been assigned, and we need to plan out the concepts, layout, script (for website), and technologies for the website.

01/23/2023 - Decided for technologies to use plain HTML/CSS since most of the group were comfortable with that the most. People that didn't know it learned through CSS tutorials. Maybe in the future, there could be a switch to tailwind, though that will be a rebuilding of the website.

01/25/2023 - We decided to give a subtheme to the project. It is going to be a travel + hotel.

01/29/2023 - Just initialized the git repository and created our first html file. We have to base it off classic website design. So we need a header, a couple of heroes split off into two sections, and a bottom tag for our bottom. This will be the layout for most of the pages in the website. We are consulting tutorials on the internet and learning from their code. But this is just going to be the skeleton. We need to create a brand. Shooting out some different names.

02/02/2023 - One of the members is trying to formulate a color scheme. Basic skeletal structure of the site is done without much decoration. No images have been added yet.

02/03/2023 - Color scheme of black, blue, and orange (because blue and orange are opposites) have been chosen. Starting to add some pictures and have to mess around with the css because of mobile compatibility.

02/09/2023 - Organized the pictures in the website into distinct categories and are currently adding more information about the website. We have decided to use the United website as a sort of inspiration, copying a lot of the same web design tropes.

02/13/20203 - We made changes to the header to make it transparent all the way, and implemented a way of floating panels for everything using flex and grid css. The padding and margins had to be reformed, and readjusted for mobile use.

02/17/2023 - I guess I have to note this, there has been a guy in our team planning out the majority of the "script" of the website. The things that are actually said on the website. We are adding some stylistic dividers on top of the heading and are replacing a grid of images to a scrollable row of images. Throughout this entire process we have been fine tuning our font sizes so that they are good for both mobile and desktop.

02/18/2023 - Added some fading transition to the css text links and made the image switch actually transition.

02/20/2023 - Just fixing padding and margins, periodically when the group members have time.

02/21/2023 - Added all of the requirements of sourcing to the website. Preparing for Regionals.
